Report of the Superintendent and Engineer of Water Works.

TO THE WATER COMMITTEE: Gentlemen—The following statement of the operations of the Water Works, for the year ending January 31st, 1865, is respectfully submitted.

We have made no more repairs than were necessary to keep the works in operation during the year, owing to the high price of material and labor.

During the past two years the valves and seats have become so much worn that it was absolutely necessary to have them plained and refitted, which is now being done, as they can be spared from the works, and I think they will be finished by the first of April.

I report from my report of last year that the time has arrived, making it essential to increase the capacity of the works to meet the demand upon them for water, and owing to the construction of the works the size of the machinery now in use cannot be increased, making it necessary to put in operation a new pumping engine. Councils will see by examining the report that one engine and pump running the entire time has not the capacity to supply the demand during the summer months. The month of July required time equal to 922 hours, with one engine and pump.

In the month of December the Upper Basin gave way from the pressure of water, at the mouth of one of the old coal pits, in consequence of which we lost eight feet of water; the ground at the time being frozen, prevented it from being permanently repaired. Owing to this difficulty we cannot keep more than five feet of water in the Basin, but as soon as the weather will permit we intend to permanently repair it.

I again recommend the removal of the old small pipes, and replace them with six and eight inch pipe.

I also recommend to your consideration the propriety of contracting for one new steam cylinder to replace the one now in use.

The running time of the Lower Works is an average of 14 56-100 hours per day for each engine, or together 29 12-100 hours. Average daily consumption of coal 304 46-100 bushels for one engine, or together 608 92-100 bushels. Average daily supply of water 908,640 cubic feet.

Running time as reported by Engineer of Upper Works is an average of 13 66-100 hours per day. Average daily consumption of coal 157 73-100 bushels. Average daily supply of water 205,971 cubic feet.

To the Select and Common Councils of the City of Pittsburgh.

GENTLEMEN:

In presenting this Annual Report, as required by your Ordinance, it gives me pleasure to state, that the work of the past year has nearly relieved the City from the legal complications and difficulties in which she has been involved for several years. But in order to fully understand what has been done, as well as the present condition of these matters, it will be necessary to refer to the work of the past two years.

1st.—THE COMPROMISE.

The City had originally subscribed to the capital stock of certain Railroads, as follows:

To the O. & Pa.	- - - - -	4,000 Shares,	$200,000 00
" Pittsburgh & Connellsville	- - - - -	10,000 "	500,000 00
" Chartiers Valley	- - - - -	3,000 "	150,000 00
" Allegheny Valley	- - - - -	8,000 "	400,000 00
" Pittsburgh & Steubenville	- - - - -	11,000 "	550,000 00
Total		36,000	$1,800,000 00

The City also had 456 shares in the Pittsburgh Gas Co. All these stocks had been assigned by the City to Trustees, in 1860. But in January, 1861, all these stocks, except the Pittsburgh & Steubenville, and 588 shares in the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago, (being a part of the 4000 in the Ohio & Penna.) were levied upon and sold by the Marshal, under process from the U. S. Circuit Court, realizing only $7,038 80.

The Trustees tried to recover these stocks and tried to dispose of those that remained unsold. But all their efforts failed. These remaining stocks were levied upon and sold by the Marshal in 1863. The title of the purchasers, however, was disputed by the Trustees, and they became a party to an equity suit in the Circuit Court of the United States, to test the validity of the sales.

In January, 1863, there were judgments in the Circuit Court on the Coupons of the Railroad Bonds, to an amount, including interest and costs of $418,265 98. On these judgments mandamus executions had been issued, the funds in the treasury tied up for a year, and the members of Councils arraigned before the Court on the charge of contempt, in not paying the judgments or not providing for them.

Such were the circumstances under which the Controller and Financial Committee commenced the work of compromise. At first it seemed hopeless. Although the attorneys here, generally, were inclined to favor a compromise, or at least not to throw difficulties in the way, yet the attorneys and agents in the Eastern cities, who had control of these judgments, were not disposed to favor a compromise or even to communicate to their clients the terms proposed by the city. They believed they could compel payment to the last cent, and seemed determined to exact it. Besides, some of them were interested in the purchase of the railroad stocks, and would hear to no proposition of compromise that did not yield all claim on the part of the city or the Trustees to those stocks. It became necessary, therefore, in order to accomplish anything, for the Controller to see, or communicate directly with the parties holding Bonds or judgments. But who were the parties and where did they reside? The records of the court did not show, and the Eastern attorneys and agents were not disposed to give the information. The first step, therefore, was to find out these parties and try and make terms with them. But the Controller and the Committee found this a work of considerable magnitude. Some of them resided in Europe, and some in nearly every State of the Union. Sometimes one party held the Bonds and another the Coupons. And it frequently happened that the coupons belonging to different parties were embraced in the same judgment.

While the Controller and Committee were thus laboring to find out the parties and make terms with them, other suits were brought and further proceedings had to compel payment. Additional judgments were obtained at the May term, 1863, to the amount of $41,289 82, and again at the November term, 1863, and May term, 1864, until the number of suits against the city on coupons reached 99, and the aggregate amount of judgments, interest and costs about $525,000 00.

On the first of last January the Controller had lifted 448 of the old bonds, and had arrangements for 191 more. Since then he has lifted 926 bonds—making the total number he has now in his possession and cancelled, 1,371. He has also negotiated the compromise of 138 more—making in all 1,512. That will leave only 288 of the old bonds still outstanding. Of these 288, perhaps 200 are held by persons unknown—most likely by persons in Europe or in the Southern States, for it is known that quite a number of the bonds were held by citizens of Maryland and Virginia before the war.

Nearly all the judgments have also been compromised on the same terms as the bonds. Many of these judgments have not yet been satisfied on the record, because of the labor and difficulties involved in making the necessary calculations, counting and verifying the coupons, ascertaining the interests of the different parties. But the costs have been paid and the terms of compromise of all these judgments (with only a few exceptions) have been definitely settled. But it will take some time and require a good deal of care and labor to settle these fully. There are 1,800 bonds, over 20,000 coupons, and 99 suits in court, to be considered, besides the semi-annual interest for six or eight years.

After a year's struggle, and exhausting every effort, the Finance Committee found they could not succeed with the compromise without also compromising the equity suit in the Circuit Court, involving the validity of the Marshal's sale of the stocks. The suit was therefore compromised by yielding the stocks, and securing terms which brought in a large number of bonds, and in other respects aided in the compromise.

With five-sixths of the entire Railroad debt of the city arranged, it is not likely there will be many more, if any, suits brought against the city on this account, or that there will be any serious difficulty in arranging the balance.

2D.—STREET ASSESSMENTS.

Prior to 1850, all street improvements were paid for out of the general fund raised by the city tax. From 1850 to 1857, they were paid out of a special fund, raised by a special tax, called the "Improvement Tax." The legislation of 1857 introduced a new system, charging the properties on each street with all future grading and paving on it, and with the cost of sewers, &c. But as a great many of the streets had been graded and paved at the common expense, it would be unjust to relieve properties on these streets from the "improvement tax," and throw the whole expense of new improvements upon the properties on the unimproved streets, when they had paid their taxes for years to improve the other streets. Hence, the Act of 16th of May, 1857, which provided for assessing upon the properties on the improved streets, the value of the grading and paving of those streets. This was done, and filed in the Prothonotary's office, in May, 1858. It embraced all the properties on the improved streets of the city, and the assessments were payable in five equal annual instalments—the first one due July 1, 1858. All the properties owned by one individual, wherever situated, were embraced in one assessment, under his name, but indicating the amount assessed upon each property. The number of persons thus assessed was about 2,500.

The Sewer Act was passed April 22d, 1858, and the first sewer under it constructed in Union Alley, in 1858. But that act provided no mode of filling up assessments as liens on the properties. To enforce payments of these assessments, suits were brought before Esq. Hoon, one of the Aldermen of the city, in January, 1859. That alley was also graded and paved at the same time, and similar suits were brought for the assessments. Alderman Hoon died a few days after these suits were instituted. Some of the parties paid to him before his death, and some paid to those who had his docket. From these circumstances, several of these claims were lost.

The Sewer law was amended by the Act of Feb 10, 1859, authorizing liens to be filed in the District Court. Cherry Alley sewer was constructed in 1859, and the assessments filed up as liens in the Prothonotary's office.

This new system led to a vast amount of litigation; partly because it was not generally understood, and partly in consequence of the very imperfect character of the Acts of Assembly. Many persons refused to pay their assessments, alleging that the acts were unconstitutional, and that there were fatal defects in the proceedings. To enforce payments, therefore, writs of scire facias were issued. There were 672 of these writs issued to the July and November Terms, 1859, and 721 to the January Term, 1861. Many of these parties subsequently paid the full amounts of their assessments to the Treasurer, but the costs on the writs were not paid.

When the books were placed in my hands for collection, April 1st, 1863, the number remaining unpaid of the general grading and paving assessments, was 796; and of sewer and other more recent street assessments, 77. I caused personal notice to be served upon all the parties, as far as possible, that the claims were left for correction, and I delayed issuing any new writs until some of the old cases had been passed upon by the Supreme Court, and decided in favor of the city. That was done in the fall of 1863. Notices of these decisions were published in the city papers and the parties again warned to pay. And not until March, 1864, when payments had ceased, did I issue any new writs. I then issued 342 writs to the April Term, embracing all the unpaid assessments. Most of these were paid before judgment, but in some executions had to be issued. However, there were but few sales, and in all of these, with three or four exceptions, the properties were bought in for the benefit of the parties interested.

The costs on the old writs, in all these unpaid cases, I endeavored to collect. But in several instances the parties refused to pay them. In some cases they had paid all that was due at the time the writs were issued, and in others, the costs were two or three times as much as the amount of as't due. I collected, however, the costs in 213 cases besides what was paid to the sheriff. The costs in the cases where the whole amount of the assessments was paid to the Treasurer, remain unpaid. The whole number of suits was 1,393. There remain 285 in which the costs are not paid, and the costs would average (including $3 00 attorney fee) about $9 00 in each case. To collect these costs, even if it were practicable, by execution, would subject the parties to additional costs of two or three times that amount. In view of all the facts in the case, perhaps it would be better for the city to settle them.

During the last two years I collected and paid over on these assessments as follows, viz :

Paid to City Treasurer on gen'l grading and paving as'mt's	$48,444 27
“ “ “ Sewer and other claims . . .	6,092 43

Total paid Treasurer	$54,536 70
Paid Prothonotary, costs	3,182 83
Collected and paid to contractors on side walks, and to Mrs. Roe, damages on the grading of Washington street . .	2,388 55

Total $60,108 08

Cases to be released	$ 873 30
Lost	538 11
In Court on affidavits	1,678 77
May yet be collected	983 87
Total	$4,074 05

I have made out, to accompany this report, a statement of all the unpaid cases of every kind, with the circumstance of each case; also a list of the writs of sei fa, in which the costs are not paid. In some of the cases to the April Term, 1864, the costs must be paid by the city. There are 37 of them yet unsettled—embracing the cases before the court on affidavits, some of the lost cases, and some that will yet be paid.

The application for an injunction to restrain the Penna. R. R. Co. from constructing its proposed “Branch,” through the city, to connect with the Pittsburgh & Steubenville R. R. on the South side of the Monongahela, was argued in the District Court, and an injunction refused. In obedience to the instructions of Councils, an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. The decision of the District Court was given too late to have the case prepared and argued at the October and November Term of the Supreme Court. It was called up, however, but the Court deferred the argument and fixed the first Monday of February next, at Philadelphia, for the hearing.
